This year it has made a terrible attack upon the grain fields in wide areas of the grain growing sections of the middle West where it has done great damage. The louse multiples very rapidly. The reproduction is very curious. Only late in the season are both sexes found. The eggs hatch in spring, producing females wholly. These to not lay eggs, but bring forth from three to five lice each day. In four or five days the young lice begin to produce off-pring in the same way. Calculation shows that in less than a month, if no lice died or were oss than a month, if no lice died or were

The Outlook.

The general field outlook on the farm has not improved for the past week, and some of the phases have certainly been the opposite of encouraging. The bad weather as deavy rains have held back the work of haying seriously, which is very discouraging as well as expensive to farmers. The rains, however, have come at such time and following so many good days for operation that no very great amount of hay has been seriously damaged. This was particularly fortunate under the circumstances. But wet weather not only delays the work, but what is still worse after grass is fully material the change of the grass, from the green appearance so desirable, to the darker colors of over-ripeness. There is however one mitigating condition which helps the matter essentially. A green bottom has sprung uramong the standing grass on all good lands that adds largely to the yield and essentially helps the feeding value is enhanced on the whole by the delay in cutting.

The heavy rains and accompanying winds have been very injurious to the standing grain, beating it down and lodging it badly. Not a little of this would have been the service of the provided that the colline of the work of the service of the servic

The potato crop, some fields of which are sow quite ripe, is panning out all that the vigorous growth promised, and if so much wet does not follow as to start the rot, will give a good account of the crop.

Pasturage holds out remarkably good and stock of all kipds is doling well. This is favorable for the dairy work going on in the State.

It finally turns out that there will be something of a fruit crop in the State after all, though as usual after years of full crops the insects have so multiplied as to work much damage. There will be plenty of early fruit all around and trees of standard market sorts that did not give a full crop last year are bearing heavily.

The beautiful appearance of the country that has characterized the season thus far, eill holds out. Follage everywhere is remarkably fresh and perfect for this season, while field and pasture are still as green as ha June, and everything in Nature wears a clean and thrifty appearance.

Yellow Clover.

The sample of clover sent to the Furmer office for name is known as Yellow Clover, or Hop Clover, Trifollum procumbers. The plecimen sent is an unusually fine one, and large of the kind. This variety of clover is not plenty. Patches of it are occasionally seen by the roadside, and in other plants are from five-eighths to three-fourthal bright yellow, shading to buff as they grow older, and finally to a brown when ripened. The plants keep putting out fresh bloosions, so that at this season and later they will be seen bearing heads in all stages of matrity, from ripeness to those fresh in bloom. The bright yellow heads present at attractive appearance to all lovers of this delicate color.

It is said the plant was introduced from a broad. J. Staation Gould, who wrote on elovers for the New York State Agricultural Society, places it as an annual, though we question the accuracy of this classificatio
